'round town

with Betty Allen...

A sudden spark was generated last night when the co-ordinating council met and it promises to develop into a real fire. Perhaps it was due to the imminence of the summer vacation with nothing in store for the youth of the community in a recreational way; perhaps it was the realization that in the fall the children of the immediate vicinity will be free from noon on, every day, due to the double sessions at the grammar school; perhaps it was the enthusiasm and determination of some of those present—Mrs. Ray Gilpatrick, Robert Raker, a newcomer with ideas; any number of people who when asked to do some specific job said, "Yes, I'm willing."

Whatever caused it, the committees appointed decided to meet right then and there in order to lose no time. And right then and there they did meet and they really accomplished something. They set the date for a community dance—June 14. The dance will serve two purposes—it will raise needed funds for recreational projects and will also give the people of Campbell and its environs a chance to do something together in a cooperative spirit.

The coordinating council, composed of representatives from organizations, clubs, schools, and churches is also open to any interested people in the community. The group really seems determined to accomplish something tangible and with the backing of all the organizations in town there is no reason why they shouldn't.

A lot of interest is being stirred up by the Beverly-Burbank Bulletin, now eager to incorporate the Beverly area with Campbell, taking in all the territory between Campbell, from both highways, to the Stevens Creek Road. Main objective would be to forestall the building of the proposed route 5 through Bradley Manor. The editor feels that, if property owners are assured by good legal talent that incorporation would legally block the building of the highway, even the orchardists would be in favor of the move. This seems, to me, to perhaps take in too much territory, and as for the motive, it would seem that we cannot fight highways, dams, airports and other evidences of progress in the country's fastest growing state. We would, in my opinion, do better to incorporate Campbell proper and do a good job taking care of ourselves before we take on the orchards and new subdivisions.

One good aspect of future incorporation hopes here is that we at last have a Chamber of Commerce which is unified and with plenty of push. And that reminds me, don't forget to attend the meeting next Wednesday!

SCHOOL EMPLOYES PROMISED MORE PAY

More pay for all Campbell High school employes was approved by the Board of Education at the May meeting. The plan to take up construction of outdoor courts for basketball and volleyabll after the close of school was approved. The board expressed desire to have school facilities freely used by responsible adults.

Chamber of Commerce To Meet Wednesday

At Wednesday's luncheon meeting of the Chamber of Commerce a lighting engineer from the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. will discuss the requirements necessary for better lighting in Campbell.

Also on the agenda is a report from the committee designated to secure a bank for the town. Carl Field heads this committee.

Another committee, instructed to request stop signs for Campbell Ave. from the Board of Supervisors, will report on its progress.

Luncheon begins promptly at 1 p.m. in the Library building and all interested residents are urged to attend.

Hospital Drive Now Under Way

Community Service Hospital's campaign to raise $1,000,000 for more hospital facilities for Santa Clara Valley residents now is under way both in San Jose and valley communities.

The campaign was launched Monday night, with a broadcast by Station KSJO, followed by a kick-off meeting for workers in the business division.

Although central committee, under chairmanship of Will B. Watson, has been seeking advance gifts for several weeks, this marks the official opening of the campaign. The meeting Monday night was the first in a series of such kick-offs for the various campaign units, and others will be held as rapidly as organization is completed.

Community Service Hospital, formerly San Jose Hospital, serves 25 valley communities, outside San Jose, including Campbell, which sent 164 patients to the hospital during the last year.

First valley community to complete its organization for the campaign is Cupertino, according to A. R. Bower, general field chairman. The Cupertino committee has accepted a quota which will enable it to take a Cupertino memorial in the hospital, and committee members are in the field seeking gifts this week.

Formation of a Citizens' Advisory Board for Community Service Hospital was announced during the broadcast Monday night by James T. Rye, general campaign chairman.

Membership in the Citizens' Advisory Board will be by contribution of at least $100 towards hospital expansion.

"A contribution of at least $100 enables you to become a voting member of the Citizens' Advisory Board of your hospital, and you will have a voice in its direction," Rye said.

All contributions may be paid over a period of three years and deducted from three income tax periods, Rye pointed out.

The business group which kicked off Monday night is divided into three parts, whose members will interview 2900 heads of business firms in San Jose and Santa Clara.

Trustees' Election Slated For Friday

A light vote is anticipated in tomorrow's school election because the candidates running for election as trustees are unopposed in both the Campbell Union High School District and the Campbell Grammar School District. Unless a "dark horse" shows up in the form of a write-in candidate, they stand virtually sure of election.

Voting for the Campbell Union High Schol trustee and the Grammar school trustees will be done at the same polling place, the Campbell Grammar school. Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Running for re-election to the high school board is Raymond Bishop. There are two vacancies on the grammar school board due to the resignation of W. R. Porter and the expiration of Lloyd Gardners' term of office. The latter is running for re-election while L. L. Anderson is the candidate for Porter's former position.

Mrs. LeRoy Anderson is running for re-election to the Moreland school board where the polling hours are from 2 to 6 p.m.

At Union school, with polling hours from 3 to 7 p.m., Dr. W. R. Morgan is a candidate for re-election.

Polling hours at Cambrian school are also from 3 to 7 p.m. and Mrs. W. C. Sartorette's name will appear on the ballots.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our appreciation to the many friends and neighbors for the kindness and the floral offerings during the illness and death of our beloved son.—Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Williams.

Los Gatos Horse Show and Rodeo, Gymkhana Field

Here's Robbin getting his oats from a couple of glamorous Los Gatos cowgirls who will participate in the parade and Rodeo and Horse Show to be held at the Los Gatos Gymkhana Field Friday and Saturday, May 30 and 31. Gloria Anderson holds his breakfast while little 4-year-old Suzie Frank pets Robbin under the chin. Held on two successive days for the first time, the show will be open to both amateur and professional contestants, who will compete for $1000 in purses added to entry fees for numerous thrilling track and arena events.

Los Gatos Rodeo All Set For May 30

For the first time in its history, this year's Los Gatos Gymkhana and Rodeo, to be held Friday and Saturday, May 30 and 31, will be open to professional riders of the rodeo circuit, and applications already received indicate some of the top riders of the state will be on hand to pit their skill against bucking bronchos fresh from the rangelands.

Over $5000 in prize money will go to winning riders this year, making this two-day rodeo one of the most lucrative in this part of the state for its size. Nearly 6000 spectators are expected to see skilled cowhands compete in the eight track and seven field events scheduled.

Addition of extra bleacher accommodations for the large crowd expected has already been completed, together with improvement in the grounds that will materially speed up the show. Installation of new facilities will make possible the running of two thrill-packed events at the same time.

Broncho busting, bareback style, will certainly provide thrills and spills as range horses fresh from their native haunts are turned loose on the track, and steers from the country's back-country ranches will undoubtedly give unwary riders a short trip for their money.

Gymkhana officials, commenting on the holiday week-end show, said "advance applications from riders from all over the state indicate the show is attracting wide interest. Doubling of last year's purses and the admission of professional riders insure us a sensational program on both May 30 and 31."

The Los Gatos Gymkhana Association, sponsor of the rodeo, is a member of the Rodeo Cowboys' Association, a national organization.

GROCERY CHANGES HANDS

Jim and Sam Edgemon, Apricot Ave., are the new owners of the Mantia Grocery at 207 San Jose-Los Gatos Road. They took over this week and are changing the name of the business to Edgemons' Market. Among other changes they plan on installing a meat department.

Mantia and his family will return to Portland, Oregon, their former home.

Has Anyone Seen Blitzie?

Blitzie is missing from her home on West Dry Creek Road and has been since Monday! Blitzie is not an ordinary dog either in appearance or history. She is a blond red dachshund with a scar on the inside of one hind leg and as for history she can claim a glamorous one. For several years she was the mascot of a Martin Marauder and in it has flown all over the United States.

This is not the only reason, however, why Blitzie is sorely missed. Her small mistress, Karen Coleen Knopf, just three years old, is ill and cries longingly for her pet. He belonged to her daddy, Lt. Warren Knopf, U. S. Army Air Corps, who was killed in a crash at Dodge City, Kansas, when Karen was only ten months old.

Karens' grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Knopf, ask that anyone with news of Blitzie's whereabouts call them at Campbell 3500 or return her to Dry Creek Rd. Rte. 1, Box 75. It will make a small sick girl very happy, they say.

Buys Interest In S. C. Sawmill

Everett Bradley, a former Campbell resident and graduate of Campbell Union High school, has purchased an interest in the Santa Clara Sawmill in Santa Clara and is now living in Campbell.

After graduating from San Jose State College, Bradley was employed by Food Machinery Co., in San Jose. He and his wife, with their small daughter, Bonnie Beth, formerly lived in Willow Glen.

Bradley is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Bradley of Campbell.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

A large number of relatives and friends gathered at Seacliff Sunday to celebrate the ninth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Pray.

RETURNS FROM VACATION

Mrs. Anna Sawyer returned to her home here Tuesday, after a pleasant vacation of three weeks in Santa Barbara. She spent the time with her daughter, Miss Irene Sawyer.

Goodwill Has 10th Anniversary

Goodwill Industries of Santa Clara County, an institution devoted to the welfare of the handicapped, the aged and the needy, will celebrate its Tenth Birthday as a corporate establishment with Open House ceremonies May 20 and 21.

The Open House celebration will take place in Goodwill's new building, 351 Lincoln Ave., San Jose and will feature a costume style show with pretty models from San Jose State College showing off the dresses worn by the mothers, grandmothers and great grandmothers of the present generation. These costumes of bygone days are a part of the collection of garments contributed to Goodwill Industries over the years.

Another inducement to a big attendance at the Goodwill Open House will be an Antique Show and a Doll Show. Goodwill's collection of both items is large and varied and should yield much of interest to visitors.

Goodwill Industries first came to Santa Clara as a branch of San Francisco Industries in 1916. In 1937 the Santa Clara County branch incorporated as a unit of the national organization of Goodwill Industries.

The organization grew until new quarters were necessary and the Lincoln Ave. plant was built to fit the need. In the new building, well-ligthed, ventilated and with ample space for workshops, Goodwill's handicapped workers reprocess and repair old garments, furniture, stoves and other contributed articles for resale to the public. The profit earned provides wages for the handicapped and aged workers.

Civic leaders of San Jose and Santa Clara County are lavish in their praise of this movement to provide work for those who cannot find placement in regular employment channels.

All residents of Santa Clara Valley are cordially invited to attend the Goodwill Open House and Tenth Birthday Celebration May 20 and 21.

Miss F. Edna Boyd, executive secretary of Goodwill Industries, emphasizes the fact that the gifts of Santa Clara County residents made Goodwill Industries success possible. For that reason, she declared: "We want the people to come and see for themselves what Courage can do!"

Death Takes Donald Ralph Williams

Last Friday at the Rutherford Funeral Home, friends and relatives gathered to pay final tribute to a small boy whose gallant spirit through a long illness had won the admiration of all who knew him. He was Donald Ralph Williams who died May 7 at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Williams.

Final rites were conducted by the Rev. S. E. Mobley of Campbell followed by interment in Santa Clara City cemetery.

Born February 3, 1936, in Buffalo, Mo., the little boy came to Campbell with his family when he was five years old and attended Campbell Grammar school.

He became ill last August and during his long illness he exercised his artistic talents by building model airplanes and by completing many soap carvings of ships and animals. He was also a talented cartoonist and delighted his friends with his work.

In addition to his parents, Donnie is survived two sisters, Patricia Helen and Sharon Ann; and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Milt Owens of Buffalo, Mo. He also leaves several aunts and uncles, including Raymond, Tom and Irvin Williams, Mrs. Alva Cowan, Mrs. Bethel Sally, Mrs. Bob Sutton, Mrs. John Randelman, and Albert, Everett and Gordon Owen.

HISTORY OF CAMPBELL

By T. A. CUTTING

2. FOSSILS OF THE CAMPBELL AREA

Although the schists of Ben Lomond are believed to be Paleozoic, they carry no fossils and so it is not known whether the trilobites, crinoids and Devonian fish which are representative of this period of time were present in the Campbell region or not. The Carboniferous age had a mild climate which produced the giant ferns and horsetails of the Pennsylvania coal beds. But both plants and animlas succumbed in the great Permian ice age which followed—the most severe in all geologic history. Even the oceans were so chilled by icebergs that much of their marine life perished.

After the late Paleozoic glacial period, came changes in solar heat, ocean currents, land area and elevation, or storm paths; and the mild climate which normally cloaks the earth returned. But the giant ferns and the horsetails did not come back; a new Mesozoic flora of conifers and feathered palms appeared instead. In the insect world great dragon flies with two-foot wing spread gave way to smaller types. Among the new forms were flying reptiles and toothed birds.

The Franciscan rocks of this new Mesozoic era are found in the foothills all the way from San Francisco to Gilroy, but they are so metamorphosed and crushed that they likewise carry no identifiable fossils. These Franciscan rocks lie beneath those of determined Cretaceous age and so are believed to be Jurassic. If so, they date back to the reptilian era when such dinosaurs as the vegetarian brontosaurus and the carniverous tyrannosaurus rex ruled the earth. Some of these monsters, as shown by their skeletons found in Wyoming, weighed six or seven times as much as elephants and were close to 70 feet in length. Since none of these fossils have ever been found in our foothills, however, it is not certain that they ever ranged here.

Rocks of the following Cretaceous period are found back of Redwood City and over the coast south of Pescadero. They contain fossil clams and spiral shells which, although not spectacular, make possible the positive identification of the strata in which they are found. Geologists usually estimate the age of these rocks at from 100 to 150 million years.

Next came the Eocene ice age, which, although many times milder than that of the Paleozoic, seems nevertheless to have been of sufficient severity to exterminate the great reptiles. For some reason, at any rate, they perished from the earth at this time.

Each subdivision of the Tertiary period has certain fossil forms of limpet, clam, spiral, fan shell, barnacle or urchin by which it may be identified. Fossils representing these periods may be found at many points in the vicinity, as for example, near La Honda, Pascadero Creek, Castle Rock Ridge, the San Lorenzo River and along the coast. On the Soquel Creek near Laurel the writer once found specimens in a bed of shells which Dr. Muller of Stanford classified as Macoma nasuta Conrad (flat clam). Fusinus barbareusis Trask (a big spiral snail), Crepida princeps Conrad (another big snail), Schisothaerus pajaroanus Conrad (smooth clam), Cardinum meekianum Gabb (ribbed clam) all of Pliocene age.

Fossil animal remains of the Tertiary period have been found in the hills about the valley on many occasions. In 1940, for instance, the writer came upon a sizeable fossil east of the Calaveras Reservoir in the northern part of Santa Clara County. He hammered the fossil from the sandstone block in which it was embedded and carried the heavy specimen up a steep embankment to the car. At home it was carefully examined by the finder's son, a medical student proficient in anatomy. He pronounced it some sort of a brain, but definitely not human. For further classification the specimen was then taken to a nearby school where it was classified as a whale vertebra.

This the finder could not believe, and so he next took it to Stanford University. There he was told that it was a brain cast, perhaps that of a sea-cow. Professor Muller said however, that his specialty was ammonites and that he was not sure of the identification. He suggested that he would be glad to have the specimen and would send it to the University of California in trade for an ammonite for the Stanford collection. He thought the specialists there in the marine vertebrates would be glad to identify it.

This arrangement was made and in due time the finder received the following letter from the Museum of Paleontology of the University of California:

"The fossil brain cast with part of the skull bones adhering to it is now a part of the paleontological collections of the University of California. If this disposition of the specimen meets with your approval, it can well remain here where it will have perpetual care. We have a graduate student who is working on the fossil whales. and he says that your find is very interesting and will form a part of a book that he hopes to publish in a year or two. We can't be sure yet as to the scientific name of the beast, but we do know that it is a rather large dolphin of Micocene age (about ten million years ago). The fossil itself can be described as an

Peninsula Cities To Join Rodeo

Invitations were received here this week by local fraternal, veteran and civic organizations to participate in the parade being held in Redwood City on July 4 to open the San Francisco Peninsula's big three-day rodeo and celebration.

A total of $500 in cash prizes in addition to trophies are offered winners in the parade this year, according to the letters received from Floyd D. Granger, parade chairman who also is veterans' service officer for San Mateo county.

With the added inducement of cash as well as trophies, the parade is expected to exceed in brilliance and size even last year's spectacular march, which was the largest in the celebration's eight-year history, Granger declared in announcing the following first prize awards: best non-professional band, $75; patriotic or artistic float $50; commercial float $25; drum corps $50; drill team, $50; decorated automobile $15; decorated rig or wagon, 20; novelty unit, $15; special entry, $10; entries, total of $60. Smaller amounts are given for second and in some cases third prizes.

Other features of this year's Independence Day celebration include a rodeo each afternoon on Friday, Saturday and Sunday; fireworks the first two night; free dancing, a variety of entertainment for all members of the family, and the continuous operation of more than a score of game and food concessions by civic organizations.

A total of 3,442,051 motor vehicles was registered in California in 1946.

Cancer Drive To Continue Through May

Mr. M. R. Bookwalter, County Campaign Chairman for the American Cancer Society reports a telegram has been received from National Headquarters stating that solicitors will remain in the field until the end of May so that County quotas will be made.

At the present time Santa Clara County has 80 per cent of its quota. Some outlying towns have made small reports to date as their solicitors have just begun their drive. We ask the people who have not sent in their contributions to mail them to the American Cancer Society, Campaign Headquarters, 246 South First St., San Jose, Cal. This money collected will be used for research on a state basis and to maintain the services in this community. At the present time research seems to be nearing its goal for a cure and diagnosis. With your help this may be possible soon.

County Exhibit Day Planned

Plans are nearing completion for the second annual County-wide 4 H Club Exhibit Day. The Exhibit Day which is being planned and sponsored by the County Club Council will be held June 21 at the Fair Grounds, according to H. Dyke Walton president of the Council.

Committees have been appointed to draw up the plans for this educational event which is one of many similar events being planned for 4-H Club members in Santa Clara County. Heads of the committees are Roland Ramelli, agriculture; Mrs. Walter Melott, home economics; Bill Britton, Bernice Boggs, record books; Fielding Lundy, awards; George Alcorn, recreation; Walter Melott, instructional. Walton is acting as general chairman of the event.

Advising the Council in the planning for the Exhibit Day are George D. Shambrook, Assistant Farm Advisor, and Mary Lou Saunders, Assistant Home Demonstration agent. Plans for the day include an opening ceremony, instructions on scoring individual projects, the scoring of projects, a demonstration showing methods of building a club exhibit booth at the county fair, and recreational events.

More than 350 boys and girls, who are members of Santa Clara County's 16 4-H clubs will be taking part in the program, according to Shambrook. The exhibit day will give these young farmers and future homemakers an opportunity to compare their projects with others and to check the progress of them according to standard scoring.

School Area Survey Postponed

Work of the Santa Clara county school district survey committee has been shelved temporarily until fall, O. S. Hubbard, county superintendent of schools, reported.

The committee was set up under the state commission on school districts to recommend unification and reorganization of school districts in Santa Clara county.

"The committee was set up last fall to function for two years, but its life will probably be extended," Hubbard said. "This will work out better if it is done slowly. After all, we have been functioning under our present system for a long time."

The local committee is one of several similar groups throughout the state appointed to recommend reorganization of school district boundaries.

The program was voted by the California state legislature in 1945 when it set up the state commission on school districts to "determine policies for, direct and govern a state-wide survey o f all school districts for the purpose of effecting feasible unification or reorganization of school districts."

The Santa Clara county committee is headed by Dean John Bartky of the Stanford University School of Education.

No more of this!

You can't hear what Henry is saying under the bed but you can be sure he is a "hot sales prospect" for Adequate Wiring. With Adequate Wiring there are plenty of outlets properly placed to eliminate inconvenient outlets in hard-to-get-at places.

A home with Adequate Wiring has plug-in outlets closely spaced and conveniently placed; it has enough circuits with wire large enough to carry full electric power to each appliance and lamp. Best of all, there will be no need for a tangle of cords hanging from an "octopus plug" when you want to use an extra lamp, clock, radio or small electrical gadgets. Insist on Adequate Wiring when you build or remodel. Write or come to any P. G. and E. office for your free copy of the 16-page booklet, "Electricity in Your Home Plans." It is full of pictures and ideas.

Elks Entertain Queen Entries

All contestants in the "Sweetheart of the California Rodeo" contest, held on May 24, together with their escorts, will be guests of the Elks Lodge at their big pre-rodeo dance on the evening of May 24. In addition to this, as previously stated, each contestant will be the recipient of a pair of Levis, and will be the guest of the California Rodeo at a luncheon on the day of the contest.

The contest is open to unmarried girls between 18 and 28, who live in any one of the five counties of Monterey, Santa Cruz, Santa Clara, San Benito, and San Luis Obispo. Paul H. Caswell, publisher of the Salinas Californian, is chairman of the committee making the selection. Blanks are at the offices of each of the Chambers of Commerce and in the newspaper offices of the five counties.

Campbell Court Notes

By Judge Blaine

This boy, about 17, had a citation for "no arterial stop" given him at an intersection very popular with adults for the same violation. "Children need models more than critics.". . . !

While pondering the ticket the judge asked, "What high school sport do you major in?"

"Not any. I'm more interested in the Future Farmers. Perhaps you heard about my hogs."

The judge thought, "I ought to give this boy a prize instead of taking money from him." Aloud the judge said, "That's fine, it's really wonderful. What are you going to do about college?"

"I'm going where I can study to be a veterinarian."

This boy was large and fine-looking, and after he had gone the judge fell to thinking about a farm boy he had known a generation ago. When this boy was as young as 11 his farmer dad was often heard talking to him as though he were a man. Except for the boy's youthful voice you would have thought the conversation was between two persons of equal age and responsibility.

This boy "grew up" undersized and queer-looking because of some glandular trouble, "handicapped." But you would never have known he was handicapped by his actions. He was capable and self-confident, a success in every way, a farmer of note and a prominent member of the Grange.

Sometimes it happens like that even with boys who are normal! They somehow get especially good starts. Their parents give them early responsibilities in a way the children like. Perhaps they are farmers or "business men" even in grammar school age, trading on their own and borrowing money on their own notes at the bank—and paying interest and principal on the dot.

It makes you wonder what this country would be like if such training were general.

Famous Clowns At Madrone Rodeo

Action-loving fans attending the annual Madrone Rodeo, scheduled this year for Sunday, May 25, are going to get more than their share of fun and thrilling amusement from the antics of such famous rodeo clowns as Nuts & Bolts and their educated mule, "Skimmed Milk," it was announced last night by General Chairman Buzz Edes.

Nuts & Bolts are, in reality, twin brothers, Howard and Harold O'Neill, top-ranking cowboys who have turned their skill toward the clowning side of Western life. The two, together with "Skimmed Milk" have played every top rodeo on the Pacific Coast and in Canada.

Adding to the bull-riding excitement of the Madrone Rodeo, Nuts and Bolts are expecting to bewilder the Brahma steers when the latter dash out of their stalls and see the same guy twice and in two different places. Everything will be all right just as long as the steers don't bewilder Nuts and Bolts.

Some of the tricks "Skimmed Milk" puts on include imitating girls chewing gum, kicking a football, telling her age by pounding the ground with her foot, making love to Nuts and Bolts, walking a six inch plank fourteen feet long, and many others.

Meanwhile, plans for the 12 event rodeo, yearly one of the West's "biggest little rodeos," are going along at a rapid clip, according to chairman Edes.

"Entries are coming in fast, particularly for the bull-riding, calf-roping and bronco busting events," said Edes. "We are offering approximately $2500 in prize money to winning cowboys, and we also expect last year's attendance figure of 3500 to be broken."

"How do you do, good people. I'm taking an opinion poll."

Blohm Re-Elected To Head Club

The first annual election of officers in the San Tomas Improvement club was held Friday night, with Henry Blohm being re-elected as president, Donald Lukehart as vice-president, and Mrs. Fred G. Carso as secretary-treasurer.

Mrs. Fred H. Smith, Mrs. Homer Epperson and Msr. Fred Carson sponsored a party recently and a breakfast at Lou's Village was another recent social activity of the club.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul F. Roller who bought the former Geddes home on San Tomas road and Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Stevens, new owners of the J. F. Watson property, as well as Mr. and Mrs. Alfred M. Conley are new members of this lively organization.

Between 1940 and 1945, the United States imported 804 million pounds of wool for stockpiling.

Moreland Notes

NEW STUDENT

The students and teachers of Moreland welcomed a newcomer, Lorraine Sequeira, to the school. Lorraine is a transfer from Monterey county and is in the eighth grade.

Harold Hughes, a member of the eighth grade, transferred to Turlock last week. While at Moreland Harold played on the baseball team. Best wishes go with him from Moreland.

A series of baseball games is being played between the fifth and sixth grades and the girls of the seventh and eighth grades. Boys are thus far in the lead.

Four students from Moreland were chosen as members of the All County Orchestra that gave a series of concerts at different schools. Rosesmarie Magnasco, Donne Montmorency, George Nelson and Ruth Eyer represented Moreland. The fact that our school placed four people in the orchestra speaks well for the pupils and their instructor.

PUBLIC SCHOOL WEEK

Moreland's Public School Week program was well attended. Our school patrons are real interested in school activities.

A very nice program was presented by Mrs. Montmorency's 3rd and 4th graders. There were several musical numbers including three selections by the orchestra.

MORELAND PTA NOTES

The Moreland PTA will hold its meeting May 21, the date having been changed from the first Wednesday of the month to the third. Mrs. Robert Allinger will give a report on the state convention held in Long Beach, which she attended.

Famous Pastor Asks Tolerance

It was a weary crusader who left San Francisco today on the last lap of a cross-country tour, but his fighting danderwas still up.

En route to his home in Hood River, Oregon, the Rev. W. Sherman Burgoyne, whose one-man battle against the erasure of names of Nisei soldiers from the Hood River community honor roll brought him into national prominance, paused long enough in the bay city to ask for vigilant guarding of California's prestige.

"Don't make California a second Hood River," was the plea voiced. "The good will which Hood River apples had built up over the years was almost wiped out by the national boycott of the valley's chief product as a result of the name-erasing incident."

Just completing a tour over the nation to promote racial tolerance, the Oregon Methodist pastor was awarded the national Thomas Jefferson award for the advancement of democracy in presentation ceremonies in New York last month.

Cambrian Hog Farm Under Study

District Attorney Leonard A. Avilla is studying the problem referred to him by the Board of Supervisors. It's a hog farm on Shelley and White Oaks Ave. in the Cambrian district.

Objector was Mrs. W. C. Sartoret, a neighbor, who has been complaining since 1942 over the hog ranch operated by L. H. and O. W. Buehner.

"It wasn't so bad back in 1942," Mrs. Sartoret told the supervisors yesterday, "as they had only seven hogs then."

However, the Health Department was called at that time and ordered the Beuhners to dispose of the hogs, according to Mrs. Sartoret. The Buehners merely reduced their stock to three, she averred.

"Recently, however, they have acquired more hogs," she complained, and when asked how many hogs were there now, she replied that that morning "there were 125." Supervisor Walter C. Pfeifle admitted "that's too many hogs."

The stench, especially "when the swill is out and the rains come" is terrible, according to Mrs. Sartoret. She stated that the women in the neighborhood "can't even open our living room doors any more and have to keep the windows closed."

Nestor Barret, director-secretary of the county planning commission, informed the board that the commision had investigated the situation some time ago, but due to a technicality in the law it was unable to act.

All residents of Campbell and vicinity are invited to attend as participants or spectators. Colorful costumes and a spirit of fun always abound on these occasions, and families are often represented with the children in replicas of the adult costumes.

David Mackay, San Jose adult recreation leader, has okeyed the party and Carl Spencer, president of the group, promises a good turnout. Local arrangements are being handled by a group of local people who are members of the Gay Nighters.

What Makes Telephone Jobs Good Jobs?

We believe telephone jobs are good jobs. But we'd like to tell you something about working conditions in the Telephone Company so you may decide for yourself. Good jobs are made up of a number of things . . . . for example . . .

Telephone pay checks come regularly—month in and month out. That's mighty important to wage earners who can plan ahead and have reasonable assurance of steady telephone work all through the year, and year after year.

● Are extra payments made for Sundays worked?

Yes. Time and a half is paid for Sunday work.

● Are extra payments made for holidays worked?

Yes. Double time is paid for specified holidays worked. Full pay (with a few exceptions) is received by those who do not work on these holidays. The holidays are New Year's Day, Washington's Birthday, Memorial Day, Independence Day, Labor Day, Admission Day, Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Certainly. After a year's service, employees get one week with pay . . . two weeks after two years on the job . . . three weeks after fifteen years.

● Are there sickness benefits, death benefits and pensions?

Yes, since 1913 and provided at no cost to the employee.

SICKNESS BENEFITS range from four weeks at full pay plus nine weeks at half pay for an employee with two years' service on up to a year at full pay for those with 25 years' service. The spectre of illness doesn't worry the telephone family quite as much as it would without this plan.

DEATH BENEFITS to dependents range from four months' pay for an employee with two years' service on up to a full year's pay for an employee of ten years or more.

PENSIONS—a funded plan paid for wholly by the company. Money accumulated over the past twenty years is held by the Bankers Trust Company as Trustee. This money can be used for employees' pensions only. Each employee's pension is based on his rate of pay and length of service.

Employe cafeterias, in larger offices, serving quality food at low prices . . . attractive lounge rooms . . . good surroundings . . . are just a few of the things that make telephone work pleasant.

More than 16,000 people here on the Coast have liked their telephone jobs well enough to spend more than 15 years with the company.

These things coupled with a policy of paying wages that compare with those paid for jobs requiring similar skill and training in this territory have made it possible to attract good people to the good jobs.

VORNADOFAN

For the Finest In Air Circulation

To behold in operation—with its smooth, murmurless currents of fresh air swirling 'round you—this is a thrill you'll relive again and again as you use a Vornadofan. Draftless, gentle billows, powerfully driven by a new principle in air circulation, cool as they refresh as they soothe. You simply must see it all in a demonstration to understand how and why - - - Come in and let us show you.

6 Reasons for Vornadofan Supremacy

Compressed air is thrust through cones in greater volume.	High-pitched propellor blade "bites" off and circulates more air.	Air is put into a spiralling motion that bores through space.
Mounted in rubber, motor is noiseless, chatter is eliminated.	A special, patented cone construction absorbs air noises.	All moving parts are enclosed for safety and silence.

Veterans' News

Disabled veterans who are receiving compensation awards from Veterans Administration may soon find that the amount of their monthly check has been increased or decreased.

V.A. is reviewing all disability compensation awards under the new rating schedule established by Congress in 1945. Until the new schedule went into effect most awards were being paid under rating schedules established by Congress in 1933 and 1925.

VA also considers the current condition of the veterans disability when determining his new rating for compensation purposes.

About 25 percent of the awards being paid to Northern California veterans have already been reviewed by VA. Of this number, 40 per cent were decreased, 20 per cent increased, 40 percent not changed.

VA estimates that nearly a year will be required to review remaining awards in Northern California.

Increases in awards resulting from the 1945 rarting schedules will be retroactive to April 1, 1946.

The review is automatic. VA requests that disabled veterans do not make inquiries about their cases while they are pending.

Question: I'm a World War I veteran and was married in June, 1945. Is my wife entitled to receive a pension when I die?"

Answer: Your wife would not be eligible for a pension if you died less than 10 years after your marriage. The widow of a World War I veteran is entitled to receive a pension if she was married to the veteran before December 4, 1944, or for 10 or more years.

Question: I am operating my own business but am losing money at present. As an honorably discharged veteran of World War II. can I claim readjustment allowances?

Answer: If you served over 90 days, part of which was World War II service, you are eligible for a self-employment allowance and may file application at a local office of your state employment service.

Question: Am I eligible to receive pension or compensation if I signed a statement at the time of my discharge saying that my disability existed prior to my enlistment?

Answer: Under the GI Bill, any statement of this nature which you may have made at the time of your discharge is considered null and void.

unusually well preserved cast of the brain of a dolphin. Sincerely yours, V. L. Vander Hoof."

The skeletons of large whales have been found in sand pits at Oakland and Felton, and in the high sea cliff at Capitola; the bones of several may be seen on the narrow rocky beach just west of Santa Cruz where they protrude from the sandstone blocks in which they are embedded. These whales are said to be of Pliocene age, which Dr. Wayne Kartschner formerly of the San Jose State College places at about 8,000,000 years B.C. Shark teeth of the same age have often been found in the white sands of Mount Hermon.

Fossils found at Knights Ferry, Red Bluff, Pinole, the Berkeley hills and Coalinga indicate that in Pliocene times the same kinds of animals ranged across California from the Sierras to the Bay. In the Sonora region have been found prehistoric one-toed horses of several types, three-toed horse-like herbivores, mastodons, peccaries, ground squirrels, extinct rabbits, small and large camels, hyenas, and deer. The same forms are found along the coast in the Coast Range. I.K. Oliver of Monterey previous to his death displayed an unusual slab of rock found in the Carmel Valley in which were embedded scores of tiny crabs, but the age is not known.

In the plant world, after Eocene glaciation came another long period of mild weather. The Oligocene age, perhaps 30 or 40 million years ago, was so warm that redwoods extended as far north as Nome. The Miocene period found the redwoods as far east as the Yellowstone. Mount Diablo had an annual rainfall of about 35 inches. The Pliocene climate was mild in winter and warm in summer. The 30-inch rainfall was distributed throughout the year with a little more rain in winter than in summer.

Toward the end of the Pliocene the Santa Clara Valley was uplifted, and the cooler, drier climate of a table-land resulted. Furthermore the Santa Cruz Mountains to the west rose to new heights and cut off the rainfall and fog. Hence the redwood gave way to the oak, willow, alder, sugar-pine, cedar, wild currant, fern and other forms of chaparal. As the last great ice age approached, the redwoods along the whole north coast perished, leaving only their fossil remains.

The giant redwoods at Felton to-day are some of them over 36 feet in diameter and 272 feet tall. They are estimated to have stood for 2400 years or more on the same spot, but the fossils of the species show that in the course of millions of years they have traveled back and forth from Nome to Monterey as they advanced and retreated with the glaciers. Now they are confined to a narrow belt of the California-Oregon coast where the mild climate which they require is still to be found.

After the Tertiary came the Quaternary. In the first epoch of this period, the Pleistocene, a great sheet of ice gradually crept down from the north, covered all Canada, and finally parts also of the northern United States. The whole world became cold, and even beyond the glacial sheet the snow came low on the mountains. It was at this time that great rivers of ice carved out the Yosemite Valley. Alternately the ice advanced and receded during several million years, giving California some very unusual weather. Tender vegetation perished and even the animal life suffered from the changing temperature.

The fullest record of the animal life of the period is obtained from the remarkable tar pits of the Rancho-la-Brea near Los Angeles. In 1906 Dr. J. C. Merriam of the University of California heard that prehistoric bones were to be found at the ranch and went to investigate. Unable to locate them, he finally accosted a small boy. Yes, the boy knew all about the "funny bones" and promptly led him to the tar pits. He immediately recognized the importnace of the fossils and began excavation. Within the next twenty years it was known exactly what animals had roamed over southern California in Pleistocene times.

One of the pits about twenty feet in diameter and thirty feet deep contained the skeletons of 17 elephants, and numerous mastodons, bison, sloths, camels, horses,lions, tigers, wolves and bears. Other pits contained the remains of 17 mammoths, 73 ground sloths, 70 bison, 60 camels, 17 prehistoric horses, 2000 sabre-tooth tigers, and 3000 dire wolves.

It is believed that in periods of glacial drought a little rain would fall and cover the tar with a thin sheet of water. An elephant or sloth seeing only the water would step in to drink and from his great weight would immediately sink in the tar. His bellows of distress as he floundered would ing packs of hungry sabre-tooth tigers or dire wolves. These, when they plunged in to attack the helpless animal, would in turn become enmeshed in the tar and perish. Great numbers of vultures, condors, buzzards, eagles, hawks, and owls coming to share the carrion were also caught. Other animals found in the pits were tapirs, dogs, mountain lions, lynxes, coyotes, foxes and peccaries. In one there was also a cypress tree.

All of the large animals found in the pits are now extinct and most of the smaller ones as well. The wolves were the largest ever known in America. The sabre-tooth tigers are supposed to have leaped upon the backs of their prey, buried their dagger-like fangs in the necks of their victims and then to have sucked their blood. The short-faced bear equalled the Kodiak of Alaska in size. The heavy limbed lions were nearly as large. The giant ground sloths were so huge and provided with such powerful arms and long claws that they were ordinarily a match for their carnivorous associates.

Since the mastodon disappeared early in Pleistocene times, evidence is afforded of the antiquity of the pits. The camels differ so much from Asiatic species that there is a possibility that they accompanied the sloths from South America and so are more closely related to the llamas than the camels. As to whether all these animals roamed over the Santa Clara Valley there may be some uncertainty, but many of them certainly did.

In the Quaternary hills back of Stanford at a depth of seven feet was found the tusk of an elephant, and near Mountain View at a depth of 33 feet was discovered the tooth of a mastodon. At Aptos was found the well preserved jaw of an elephant and near Santa Cruz an elephant tooth. H. A. Braford in 1924 reported finding a mastodon tusk four feet long at Vasquez Peak, San Benito County. I. K. Oliver reported a mastodon tusk in Monterey County.

In a gravel pit on the Hayward fault near Irvington have been found the upper canine of a small saber-tooth tiger or cat, mammoth and mastodon bones, the skull of a prehistoric horse with well worn teeth, another short wide skull, and equine teeth of perhaps a new species. Pleistocene camel bones also were found, and those of a four-prong antelope. At Mount Diablo have been uncovered hyiena and beaver bones, also of Pleistocene age. All these fossils show that much the same animals frequented the Campbell area at this time as were to be found about Los Angeles.

The great beasts that escaped the tar pits succumbed to glacial chill. Why they did not save themselves by retreating into Mexico is not fully understood. Perhaps they were cut off by arid deserts, or were unable to adapt themselves to new foods. At any rate, when the new age, the Recent, brought a return of mild weather, they were all gone and nature had to develop new species to take their place—the grizzly, the elk, the deer and all th others which the Indian found when he arrived in the Santa Clara Valley.

Take Care Of Your Kitchen Range

Follow these simple rules to extend the life of your stove. Keep all parts of the range clean. If it is an electric range, salt, soda, sugar and soap will harm the electric unit. Keep these four "S's" away from your stove. Protect the enamel surface from sudden changes of temperature and from scratches and blows. Remember it will chip just as your China will if it is not treated with care.

Check the installation of your stove and see that the gas pressure is crrect or that the electric voltage is right. Have your oven tested for even heating and see that the oven gauge is reliable.

To clean, use warm soapy water or very fine powdered cleaner. If spots don't come off, a fine steel wool may be used but never rub with a course, gritty, scouring powder. Cast iron burners may be washed in a solution of one tablespoon of washing soda to three quarts of water. After washing be sure to rinse and wipe dry. Use a brush if burners or fuel lines are clogged. Check the pilot lights after every cleaning.

For additional information on care of a gas or electric range, contact Mary Lou Saunders, your Assistant Home Demonstration Agent, with the Agricultural Extension Service, Room 201 Post Office Bldg., Col. 3866.

County Gets $8292 Estate

All but $8 of the $8300 estate of the late Manuel Levratto, who died at Mountain View April 30, was willed to the County of Santa Clara according to terms of the document filed for probate in Superior court.

Levratto's will, dated June 14, last year, gave no reason for cutting off his brother, Natalie, and seven nieces and nephews with only one dollar each.

Levratto also named the County executor, but since the County cannot serve, a niece, Louise Mangini, of Mountain View, filed for appointment. If appointed she will receive something more than her small bequest by virtue of executor's fees.

In addition to the brother and Mrs. Mangini, willed one dollar were: Tino Levratto, nephew, Hollister; Marie Revetto, Teresa Levratto, both Mountain View; Manuel Levratto, Boise, Idaho, and Henry and Jerry Levratto, both Mt. View.

New Bay Bridge To Be Discussed

Bruce Craver, publicity director of the San Jose Chamber of Commerce, will attend a meeting to discuss the second San Francisco bay crossing in Hayward Thursday night.

Sponsored by the Alameda County Chambers of Commerce, the meeting will be attended by representatives from various Northern California chambers.

The San Jose chamber has not taken a stand yet on which of the two proposed crossings it favors, Craver said.

Last Session Of Grammar School PTA

The last session of the Campbell PTA was held Tuesday, May 6, in the school auditorium with Mrs. R. W. Cross presiding.

The Pledge of Allegiance was led by Mrs. Margaret Singleton, after which the group sang America, which was followed by the Lord's Prayer.

Mrs. J. R. Longfellow reported $78.72 profit from the recent rag drive. Mrs. Ingram's and Miss John's third grade classes tied for the first prize in the lower division with Arthur Tindall winning first in the upper division.

W. C. Henley spoke of the coming school year. Campbell grammar school has an unusual prblem to meet this year. There will be three schools in one until the two new schools, Morepark and San Tomas are ready for occupancy. This will necessitate a double session. The system will be set up as three individual schools to reduce the confusion of moving to a minimum.

Arthur Tindall gave a very interesting talk on Community Recreation. What we have in Campbell, what we need, why we need it, and ending by telling how to get it—hard work and full cooperartion from everyone in the community.

Mrs. L. E. Cross made the announcement that all women who wish to do their canning at the community canning center get in touch with the adult educational center in San Jose.

The meeting was adjourned to the cafeteria for refreshments served by the first and kindergarten grades.

Box Office Reporter

On Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, the action-filled, brilliantly Technicolored and historically backgrounded "California," starring Ray Milland, Barbara Stanwyck and Barry Fitzgerald, will be shown at the Campbell Theater. In addition to superb direction there is also music, an especially suitable and appropriate assortment of it performed with unobtrusive artistry and blended smoothly into the whole. It's an extraordinary picture in many respects.

The period covered by the script, written by Frank Butler and Theodore Strauss, from a story by Boris Ingster, is from 1848, with its discovery of gold in California, to 1850 and the decision of the citizens to accept Statehood. The action opens in the desert, spectacularly photographed, introducing dramatically the principal characters, and moves quickly to the area near Monterey, final setting of the story.

In the open, as in the elaborate interiors employed, the camera's eye is given magnificent stuff to feed upon, and the players are equally well supplied with story to tell.

Millard portrays an Army deserter who has hired out as guide to a wagon train. Miss Stanwyck plays a young woman of uncertain past who is shunned by the ladies en route west by wagon but is given transportation by Fitzgerald, a farmer seeking agricultural advantages but keenly aware of ethical values. Milland and Miss Stanwyck strike up at once a personal conflict which rages until, after she has determined to marry a former slave trader who plots to make California an empire and himself its emporor, Milland thwarts the villains' plans and Miss Stanwyck shoots the scoundrel dead as he is about to kill Milland. Many another killing, fist fights, knife duel, beating, etc., etc., have occurred the while, none of them in the usual formula and all of them with story purpose.

The picture has about it the earnestness of "The Covered Wagon," the glamour of Technicolor at its best, the music of the period in brilliant performance, and a deal more impact than is commonly achieved in a film of its kind.

An Artist At Work Five Days A Week

Thousands of San Franciscans are paying tribute these days to an artist who demonstrates his amazing skill five days a week on Market street. He is the shovelman at the controls of a huge steam shovel engaged in tearing up the street to pave the way for removal of the outer set of car tracks.

No impresario of the opera houses could have a larger or more appreciative audience than this artist shovelman. Spectators line the curbs five deep in the heart of the shopping district to watch him deftly wield his scoop, avoiding lethal trolley wires, dodging passing street cars and automobiles, meanwhile feeding tons of sand, concrete slabs and splintered ties into waiting trucks.

This wizard repays the citizenry in some measure for the inconvenience and delays incident to reconstruction of the street and affords an outlet for the envy of the average indoor white-collar office worker for the man who works outdoors with his hands.

Fiesta Starts Friday In San Jose

St. Leo's Fiesta, four days of fun, prizes, games and dances, begins at St. Leo's school and church at 1051 West San Fernando, today.

A "Midway" of games and stunts will be in full swing, with everything from an electrical appliance booth to a frozen foods booth. A separate section will be devoted to the kiddies, with thrilling rides and juvenile games. The grounds surrounding the school will be brightly lighted and gaily decorated. Indoors in the gymnasium will be another exciting phase of the fiesta for the grown-ups.

Every year St. Leo's puts on a Fiesta for the entertainment of the townspeople and for the raising of funds for a new youth center, new church and parish house. Ed Dolan, chairman of the affair, has promised a fine barbecue to round out the program.

California silver production increased 39 per cent in 1946.

Work on the Panama Canal was commenced January 20, 1882.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR:

Dear Editor:

On April 24 Cub Pack 9 held a pack meeting, and although there were a few parents present, the absence of many was very evident. These pack meetings are for the express purpose of showing the parents what their boys are doing in their cubbing work. The mothers who give their time to have the boys once a week for den meetings, want to have the opportunity of meeting the parents of the boys and talking to them for the welfare of the youngsters.

It seems to me that if these Den Mothers can find time to work with the boys once a week and during the week plan things for them to do, and also make many trips to San Jose to procure material for them to work with, the parents of these boys could find time once every six or seven weeks to attend a pack meeting. Surely that is not asking too much. Or is it? Aren't these boys worth giving one night? I'm asking the parents to think this over and see if they can't put themselves out a little bit next time and attend the pack meeting. It might not be very interesting, or entertaining, but neither is having your house messed up every week, and walking all over San Jose trying to find things, or all the other things Den Mothers do, but they do them. If these few who apparently care adopted the same attitude as these uninterested parents there would not be any Cub Scouts, or any other kind of activities for the boys, and there is little enough in Campbell for the youngsters without their own parents jeopardizing that which they have.

Yours very sincerely,
BLANCHE GILPATRICK,
Den Mother of Den 4, Pack 9.
